Chuck Offenburger

This is the most comprehensive history of boys high school athletics in Iowa. Simultaneously, it reads like a storybook of sports vignettes and an encyclopedia of information about the Iowa High School Athletic Association. The book highlights the programs and events that have helped build the association as one of the most admired boys' sports programs in the U.S. The purpose of this book is to pay tribute to the life and career of Bernie Saggau -- a man who devoted much of his professional career to the development of the association. As Chuck Offenburger recalls Saggau's 37 years as executive director, readers are treated to some amazing stories about athletes, coaches, referees, administrators, media and fans who have come to realize that there may be no better place to be a high school athlete than in Iowa. In an effort to celebrate the uniqueness of high school athletics in Iowa, Offenburger illustrates how sports have shaped the history of many small towns over the past 100 years. Readers of the book will learn about a)the life and career of Bernie Saggau, who retired from the IHSAA on January 1, 2005; b)the life and career of Rick Wulkow, the current executive director of the IHSAA; c)some of the most devoted athletes and athletic families in the state; d) the 25 greatest high school boy athletes of the past century; e) The Centennial Honor Roll -- the results of a survey which includes the 25 greatest and 100 other athletes who are rated amongst the best ever by coaches, athletes, administrators, fans and the media; f) fifteen notable alumni of the program who have become renowned beyond athletics
